When Chicago-based DJ, remixer, artist and producer Matt Warren was asked to come up with a title for his new album, he knew straight away that he wanted to call it "Music Is My Life."

He knew this was fitting, as he has lived and breathed music for the last forty years. It's all he wanted to do since he first stepped behind the wheels of steel as a 12-year-old, and since then, Matt Warren has been living the dream first as a DJ, then as an artist, producer, and remixer.

That dream continues with the release of his album "Music Is My Life" on the Chicago and Miami-based label Wake Up! Music, which features the first new music that Matt Warren has released in over ten years. However, "Music Is My Life" is just the latest chapter in the Matt Warren story which began in the Windy City of Chicago with the birth of the House genre. As one of the founders of Chicago House music in the 80s, Matt now presents songs from the Chicago sounds and genre he is creating today: Nu-House. Nu-House is sure to have people around the globe dancing to the Nu Chicago sound of House Music.
